

PURE's analysis of schools with too few people running to have an LSC based on CPS list of March 19, 2008

List on March 14 had 59 entries. The current list is 38 entries. 6 new entries have been added after verifying that they are still existing schools that have some sort of LSC, and have too few candidates to form an LSC. 4 schools were removed after verifying that they have been closed. Of the other 23, 2 now have full slates and 21 are still short but have enough candidates to form an LSC. This is an unofficial list and errors may remain, but it was compiled using CPS data from March 19, 2008.

Where it states that there is no one running, that includes teachers, except where noted.

PURE's analysis shows that there are 246 schools with fewer LSC candidates than available positions, but enough candidates to form an LSC

This is in addition to the list of schools with too few candidates to form an LSC.

Except where noted, there are adequate teacher candidates.

The numbers listed below are what is needed to have enough candidates for all slots to be filled. More candidates will be needed for contested elections.
